Dear Parents of Aggie Student-Athletes,

Welcome to the UC Davis Athletics community! By virtue of being a parent of one (or more) of our student-athletes, you have joined an elite group known as: Aggie Pride Parents.

Aggie Pride Parents is a support group for parents that enjoy being a part of a nationally renowned program such as UC Davis Athletics. Being an active participant in this elite family provides an avenue to reach out to many of our 27 varsity sports and the athletics community. It also engages you in the process of special events and the important role current parents play in the overall landscape of Aggie Athletics. Our quarterly newsletter will keep you informed and involved in all aspects of athletics, ranging from upcoming events to pertinent information from within athletics.

The Aggies became an official member of NCAA Division I in July 2007. This historic date ended the four-year reclassification period in which UC Davis readied itself to compete against many of the top institutions in the country. The 2007-08 season was an outstanding year for Aggie Athletics.

- Our average team GPA (all men’s and women’s teams combined) for winter 2008 was 2.96. This breaks the record for the highest average GPA in one quarter for all our teams combined. We had previous highs of 2.92 (S’03) and 2.91 (S’07 & W’04) in this category.
- On October 13, 2007, the Aggies dedicated their new $31,000,000 stadium, the home for football, women’s lacrosse and, beginning next year, women’s field hockey.
- Women’s basketball made its first conference postseason appearance in Anaheim as a member of the NCAA Division I. Coach Simpson was named Coach of the Year for the Big West conference and Jessica Campbell was named to the first team Big West All-Conference team.
- Men’s soccer coach Dwayne Schaffer was named Coach of the Year in the Big West Conference. The UC Davis men’s soccer team earned an at-large bid into their first ever NCAA Division I tournament in Berkeley and finished tied for 33rd in the nation.
- The Aggie women’s water polo team advanced to the national championships where it finished a program best fourth! This was their second trip to the National Collegiate (NCAA) Championship in three years. The Aggies previously advanced to the NCAA tournament in 2006, finishing fifth at our own Schaal Aquatics Center. UC Davis earned the national berth by virtue of a 10-9 victory over Loyola Marymount in the Western Water Polo Association title game, earning the conference’s automatic qualifier. 2008 was the last year of membership in the WWPA for the Aggies, who will begin play in the six-team Big West Conference in 2009.

All of these outstanding accomplishments of our student-athletes were possible through the support and commitment of our parents, coaches, outstanding alumni and the university community. Aggie Pride Parents not only will provide parents a better understanding of the university, it will instill a common mantra that has resonated through athletics for decades - “Aggie Pride.”

UC Davis Athletics is excited to have you, and your son or daughter as a part of the Aggie family.

Save the date! Our next Aggie Pride Parent event will be Saturday, February 21, 2009. We will be meeting for lunch and more. This event will be centered around a double header at the Arc-Pavilion with UC Davis Women’s Basketball vs. UC Santa Barbara and Men’s Basketball ESPNU BracketBusters! This is a great opportunity to meet other parents.

Best Wishes,
Lorie Lindsey

Greetings and welcome to UC Davis. The Compliance Services Office has many responsibilities involving student-athletes. We monitor NCAA, conference and institutional rules and regulations to ensure institutional control. We also provide education and interpretations for coaches, staff, student-athletes, parents and boosters. Part of what makes UC Davis unique is our commitment to academic purity and overall program integrity. The University is committed to complying with NCAA and conference rules and regulations. We believe all individuals associated with intercollegiate athletics must work together to enforce both the letter and the intent of the rules. Our philosophy focuses on self-governance. Coaches, student-athletes, faculty and staff, alumni, boosters, and friends have an obligation to report information concerning a potential or known violation of NCAA rules. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Jennifer Cardone, Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance Services, at (530) 754-7552 (jacardone@ucdavis.edu) or Tracy Cumming, Compliance Coordinator, at (530) 752-6146 (tcumming@ucdavis.edu).

Some of the areas the Compliance Services Office is responsible for include: amateurism, athletic scholarships, the National Letter of Intent, initial eligibility, transfers, outside competition, medical hardship waivers, monitoring practice hours, monitoring recruiting, promotional activities, private lessons, tryouts with professional teams, agents, professional drafts, gambling, and any other issues that may effect a student-athlete’s eligibility.

Greetings from Student-Athlete Academic Services! As the academic counseling and student services office, we’re here to help our intercollegiate student-athletes throughout their UC Davis career. Our four athletic academic advisors each have specific sport assignments; we meet with the student-athletes on our teams from the time that they are recruited or join a team until they graduate from UC Davis. Although we’re the only advisors on campus who are versed in the NCAA Division I and Big West Conference academic eligibility rules, we work in collaboration with academic advisors in the four college deans’ offices and 108 different undergraduate majors.

We encourage our incoming freshmen and transfers to schedule a one-hour appointment with their athletic academic advisor in fall, winter, and spring (at least three total appointments) during their first year on campus. Meeting in 60-minute appointments regularly during the first year allows us to get to know our students academically; it also helps our freshmen and transfers get of to a good start and meet NCAA progress toward degree rules. Returning student-athletes are urged to meet in an appointment with us at least once a year--but we’re happy to meet more frequently with any student-athlete. Our appointments often include discussion of short- and long-term academic and career goals including choice of major, length of degree (especially critical for students who plan to redshirt and stay a fifth year), class selection, adjustment to UC Davis, study abroad, preparation for graduate school, etc. New freshman and transfers received additional information about our services at the New Student-Athlete Orientation on September 23rd.

In each issue of this newsletter, I thought it might be fun to share a few facts about the remarkable academic achievements of our Aggies. Some recent statistics are:

- As of (3/08) our current student-athletes were enrolled in 79 different undergraduate majors.
- In winter quarter 2008, a school record of 16 of our teams earned a 3.00 or higher team GPA.

We welcome our fall 2008 freshman and transfers and look forward to the continued success of all our student-athletes in the classroom—and in their sport—throughout the year.

What has it meant to have our oldest daughter, Emily, attend UC Davis as a student-athlete? A great deal, actually…

For starters it’s made us even more proud of Emily. True, we were proud of her to begin with (just as we are of her little sister Natalie who is still in high school), but to have done so much, so well, for so long, and to end up at such a great school, well, that kind of thing will make a parent drop in his/her tracks and kiss the ground.

But since we, her parents, are both Aggies it also makes us proud of UC Davis. It’s always been a great school, but these days it has a certain presence too. There’s a buzz about it that is new and undeniable. All the recent investment, particularly in athletic infrastructure, is impressive and is clearly paying dividends with every new freshman class. So, that it was able to grab and hold Emily’s imagination, with little if any parental intervention, and win out over the several dozen other excellent schools that were courting her out of high school, well, that was very satisfying indeed. And judging by what’s been happening to license plate holders throughout the SF Bay Area, it is apparent that we are not the only ones to feel that way.

Then there’s the pure joy of the anticipation and excitement of the sports themselves. We must confess that decades had passed since we had last attended an Aggie sporting event. But now not only do we rarely miss a swim meet, we find ourselves regularly checking the Aggie Athletics Calendar for upcoming events here in the Bay Area or up in Davis. Softball, baseball, basketball, tennis, water polo, soccer…we’re hooked on them all now. The family car knows the way to Davis by heart. And on more than one Saturday a bicycle has been piled on a Capitol Corridor train and been ridden across campus from one game, meet or match to another.

Do that once or twice and you will surely come away with a profound respect for what UC Davis student-athletes are all about these days. In fact, in Emily’s freshman year alone (‘05-’06) we bore witness to Aggie victories over Stanford in football, (men’s) basketball and baseball. Not that winning is the most important part. It’s not and hopefully it will never be. For us - and we’d like to think for all true Aggie fans - it’s about the competition itself, not the outcome. We’ve seen for ourselves how fearlessly the Aggie women’s basketball and softball teams have played against the likes of Cal and Stanford, the men’s soccer team against Cal in the NCAA tournament, and women’s water polo against UCLA and Stanford at NCAAs. That they didn’t win matters little.

You get the idea. Go Ags!

Morales Parents

This is a note to all the parents who have student-athletes at UC Davis. My husband and I have fostered a strong attitude of gratitude from the first day our son walked on to the UC Davis field to practice with his newly adopted teammates. The coaches and athletics department inclusively were always helpful and positive. We also have adopted this school as a new home away from home, sustained by a true family atmosphere felt at UC Davis. To be a student-athlete attending this highly accredited academic school is an honor, challenge and privilege from day one. You as parents/guardians will attest to this fact as the days/months turn into years, and you see it reinforced by their growth and achievements attained by hard work plus a dedication to their sports and school activities.

Our son, Mike, being a walk-on, was able to be on the sidelines the first weekend in September 2005 after only being at UC Davis for five days of practice with the football team. As a freshman, he was able to wear the blue and gold, proudly as the team won the most amazing game in Davis and Stanford’s history. At an early stage of our journey with UC Davis we, as parents, were sold on the school, the spirit, the dedication of coaches, teachers, student-athletes and parents alike. Every event has confirmed our belief that our son and we are in the right place. We are able to contribute to the athletics department and have spent time at various events, not just football. We share our support with wrestling, baseball and football through TeamAGGIE contributions as well as the yearly auction. I feel the parents and alumni we have met at the various events are truly quality people, who support a class act, the UC Davis Athletics department. Coaches and administrators alike hold academics, character, and hard work as number ONE.

Good luck to you and I encourage you to get involved, for you will never regret it. See you on the road trips (don’t miss the Band-uh’s arrival…always a thrill), the pregame BBQs, postgame receptions, the Aggie Women’s Huddle, and in the stands (home games: the new stadium) cheering the AGGIE athletes on. Go Ags!!

COACHES LETTER

It has been very encouraging over the past several years to have the parent and alumni/fan support that enables us to compete at the highest level as part of the Pac-10 Conference. I can’t tell you how my spirits have been uplifted when we have received a gift that is so crucial to the program. Without the generous giving to our team, we would be in a burdensome situation competing in the PAC 10 and trying to draw in California’s talented wrestlers. The facilities that we now have, through the generosity of our donors, have been literally our life source. Without our passionate donors, parents, and fans. I can’t imagine where we would be today. I have often wondered how successful the athletics teams would be at UC Davis if we would have the infrastructure similar to that of the top California universities. Last year, we finished in the top 95 Division I programs vying for the coveted Directors’ Cup – in our inaugural year as a Division I institution. It will be very exciting to see what may happen in the next few years. However, it will take financial commitments from our parents and alumni to help the UC Davis teams build their programs.

HOLMES NAMED TO HEAD VOLLEYBALL POST

Jamie Holmes, most recently the top assistant women's volleyball coach at The Ohio State University, was named as UC Davis’ ninth head women's volleyball coach. She replaced Steve Walker, who left the Aggie program after a two-year tenure to accept a head assistant coaching position at the University of Arizona.

In her six seasons with the Buckeyes, Holmes coached four American Volleyball Coaches Association All-Americans, most notably 2004 AVCA Player of the Year and Big Ten Player of the Year Stacey Gordon. During that span, Ohio State compiled a 122-65 overall record and made four NCAA tournament appearances. Additionally, Holmes’ recruiting efforts have resulted in nationally ranked freshman classes in 2004, 2006 and 2007.

Before her arrival in Columbus, Holmes spent five years at Southwest Missouri State (now known as Missouri State) as the top assistant coach. In her tenure with the Bears, she helped transform the program from an 18-14 record in 1997 to a 25-5 ledger in 2001. Off the court, Holmes’ role as academic coordinator oversaw the team’s grade-point average rise from 3.18 in her first season to a 3.42 in 2001-02. Her skills in recruiting brought in the schools first-ever AVCA All-America honoree and a Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Year. Additionally, Holmes served on the board of directors for Club Bear Volleyball, a youth development program.

Holmes previously served one year as head women's coach for Evangel University in Springfield, Mo.; and a season as the head men's coach at her alma mater of Bethany University. She graduated summa cum laude from Bethany in 1994, earning a B.A. degree in social science. Holmes also is completing her Master of Divinity from the Assembly of God Theological Seminary in Springfield.

Holmes played club volleyball for Sacramento State head coach Debby Colberg, then spent three years (one as a redshirt) in the Hornet program from 1989 to 1991. She then completed her career at Bethany, serving as team captain in the 1992 and 1993 seasons. As a senior, Holmes led all NAIA players in kills per game and hitting percentage, earning All-Region and All-America honors from the AVCA.

WALKER NAMED UC DAVIS WOMEN’S GOLF COACH

Anne Walker, formally the associate head women’s golf coach at Cal, was named women’s head coach at UC Davis, replacing Kathy DeYoung who announced her retirement in February.

Walker, who twice earned medalist honors and was a three-time captain for the Golden Bears, joined her alma mater’s staff after graduating in 2002. She served as assistant coach until 2007 when she was elevated to associate head coach.

In her role, Walker was involved in nearly every aspect of Cal’s program, including recruiting, marketing, administration and fundraising. She also helped coordinate team travels to Japan, Mexico and Scotland.

“We are delighted to have Anne joining UC Davis,” said Associate Athletics Director Bob Bullis. “She has great coaching experience and I believe she will take the team from where Kathy has gotten it in its three years and keep moving forward with it.”

Walker was a three-time All-Pac-10 Conference selection at Cal, earned All-America Scholar honors from the National Golf Coaches Association (NGCA) of America three years and was the 2002 Pac-10 Medal winner. From 2000-02, she was a member of the Chancellor’s Advisory Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics.

“I’m thrilled to be given the opportunity,” Walker said “Kathy has built a strong foundation for the program to be successful and I look forward to continuing those efforts.” Walker said she is confident her experience will help the Aggies continue its early success, which includes a berth in the NCAA Championships.

“I was part of building a program at Cal. We were in a similar situation and we went to the top five in the country. I hope for similar success here,” she said. “I’d like to build a program around character. I want to build a program that is recognized both on campus and in the community.”

The Aggies win on September 20 in the Causeway Classic series snapped a 12-match Sacramento State winning streak. The last UC Davis victory in the Causeway series had been in 1992.

Chelsea Stelzmiller recently completed her freshman season by earning Big West Conference Player and Freshman of the Year honors while helping lead UC Davis to a 21st-place finish at the 2008 NCAA Division I Championships. She also advanced to the quarterfinals at the 108th US Women’s Amateur Championships.
NEW FACES IN ATHLETICS

AGGIES NAME
WARTENBURG HEAD
CROSS COUNTRY COACH

Drew Wartenburg has been named the new head coach of the men’s and women’s cross country teams. Wartenburg takes over for Chris Puppione, who resigned his position in June to pursue other career opportunities.

Wartenburg officially began his new position on August 4 and will coach the distance runners as an assistant coach on the men’s and women’s track and field teams.

“We feel Drew will be a great fit for our program,” said Director of Women’s Track and Field Deanne Vochatzer. “His even-keeled coaching style will put our student-athletes at ease and I know he’s ready to come in and get things going. Over the past year Drew has helped bring along the Oregon State distance runners and has been instrumental in the program’s efforts to establish its newly-reinstated program. He has developed some top tier runners at the high school level and he comes to our program as a very well-rounded individual.”

Wartenburg spent the 2007-08 season as an assistant coach for the Beavers’ women’s track and field and cross-country teams. In only their third year since reinstating the programs for the 2004-05 season, the Beavers finished 13th at the NCAA West Regional during the cross-country season and qualified their lone track and field athlete for the regional meet in the steeplechase - an event Wartenburg helped coach.

Prior to arriving at Oregon State, Wartenburg spent six seasons as the head coach at Charles Wright Academy in Tacoma, Wash. His first two years there were spent as the dean of students while his final two years included a tenure as the athletics director. During that time Wartenburg’s cross-country teams combined to capture three league titles, three district titles and three Washington State titles at the 1A level. Individually, four of his runners captured state titles, which included two National Foot Locker finalists. His other coaching experience came as the assistant boy’s and girl’s cross country coach at Chadwick School in Palos Verdes, Calif. In addition to coaching at Chadwick, Wartenburg spent time as the foreign language chair while teaching Spanish.

SPIRO NAMED SENIOR ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR

Cindy Spiro, Senior Associate Athletics Director for Development and Senior Woman Administrator (SWA) at the University of the Pacific, has been named Senior Associate Athletics Director for External Affairs and Resource Development at UC Davis.

Spiro joins UC Davis after serving in a leadership capacity at fellow Big West Conference member Pacific for the past 14 years and after a tenure that began at the school in 1977. She was Assistant Director of Athletics and SWA from 1994-96, was Interim Athletics Director during the 1996-97 academic year and was named the Associate Director of Athletics for Operations in 1997. She assumed her current role in 2002.

Her most recent responsibilities at the university involve all aspects of the ‘Tigers’ 16-sport athletics program with emphasis on strategic planning, policy formation, academic progress and alumni engagement. Spiro also led fundraising efforts totaling more than $16 million for Pacific’s new Klein Family Field baseball stadium, the Janssen-Lagorio Gymnasium, the Roy and Jean Sanders Tennis Clubhouse, and athletics endowments.

“Cindy brings a wealth of diverse experience as an athletics administrator, not only with her responsibilities at Pacific but also at the conference and national levels,” said Greg Warzecka, director of athletics. “She will help provide great leadership as we continue to build our Division I program.”

Spiro said she is excited to join a growing UC Davis athletics program.

“UC Davis has a stellar reputation in higher education and the path of its intercollegiate athletics program is a reflection of its institutional mission and core values,” Spiro said. “I look forward to joining the Aggie program and working to help build a solid foundation for great success in Division I athletics.”

Spiro received her undergraduate and graduate degrees in physical education from Pacific in 1976 and 1984, respectively. Her career at the institution began as a graduate assistant instructor and interim director of intramurals in 1977. She became coordinator of women’s athletics in 1979.

While at Pacific, Spiro was the tournament manager for NCAA Division I Men’s Basketball First/Second Round Championships at Arco Arena in 1998 and 2002, and headed campus operations for the San Francisco 49ers summer training camp from 1998-2001. She currently serves on the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics Executive Committee and is chair of the NCAA Women’s Volleyball Rules Committee.
